Waste in the Kitchen. The table is the place where most waste can occur, so guard it well and pay strict attention to the second serving of food. The people who prefer an economical table, which, in their own mind, means broiled to cater for. Study to make the warmed over dishes decidedly more than ordinary hashes. Employ judicious combinations and pleasant seasonings; for instance, use sage with warmed-over pork, parsley with poultry, sprig of mint with your mutten or lamb, and a little onion to stimulate the beef. Cucumber catsup, inexpensive if you make it yourself, heightens the flavor of fish. An acid jelly with tame duck, and to-mate sauce with warmed over yeal. by rendering it palatable and slightly. In all these little points we must be on the alert, or the garbage bucket will devour our substance. Those who have the responsibility of the household management must not forget the necessity of practical work in the kitchen. The power of giving directions so clearly that the maid will from them produce the desired results, is perhaps, all that is required in some cases, but to teach others thoroughly, so that no waste will co-

Table Talk. A BULL TACKLES A TRAIN. - As the 12:42 train came in sight of Mr. James Nicholson's farm just across the river from Fredericksburg last Friday, a large bull belonging to Mr. Nicholson walked boldly up on the railroad track in front of the train, either for the purpose of baying a little inno cent fan, to commit suicide, or to stop the train, it is not known which. When the train struck him he backed firmly against it and was shoved along in front of it for some distance and finally thrown down the embankment at the Rappahannock river with the loss of one hoof and other slight injuries. The bull had previously been in the habit of overcoming all things that he tackled, and it is a surprise that he was not successful in throwing the train off the track instead of being thrown off himself .-Fredericksburg Lance.
